

I wish to express my great displeasure with this policy should it be allowed. Even though a direct to voicemail call does not cause my phone to ring, thus disturbing me with unsolicited sales pitches, it will still require me to use phone minutes and/or data to initially listen to the message and subsequently delete it.

I do not wish to receive unsolicited messages in my voicemail box anymore than I want robo calls. Please do not allow this request by a company to aggravate me via the telephone to go through.
